As the trustees for the employer's occupational pension scheme, you, the member and their financial adviser will need to complete and sign this application form if you allow the member to take a cash lump sum from their retirement savings.

1 Important information

Please read this section carefully before completing this application form.

- Please use BLOCK CAPITALS and black ink when completing this form.
- You the trustees, the member and their financial adviser will need to complete and sign this form if you allow the member to take a cash lump sum from their retirement savings.
- A member will only be able to take all or part of their retirement savings as a cash lump sum if the:
 - payment is allowed under the terms and conditions of the plan which is held under the scheme;
 - trustees have decided to offer this option under the rules of the scheme;
 - member meets certain requirements which are detailed in the declaration section of this form.
- Before a member takes a cash lump sum from their retirement savings under the scheme, it's important that they understand all their retirement options (including the tax implications of these) and discuss these with a financial adviser. Once they've made a decision to take a cash lump sum and the payment has been made, they can't change their mind.
- If the member is able to take only part of their retirement savings from the scheme as a cash lump sum, the minimum amount they can ask to take is £1,000. The amount remaining in their plan must be no less than £2,500 (or £200 if regular contributions are still being made to the scheme for them.)
- If the member is able to take more than one cash lump sum from their retirement savings within any tax year, Royal London may apply a one off charge for this. Any charges that may be applied will be set out in the terms and conditions of the plan which is held under the scheme and will be confirmed to the trustees before the member takes a cash lump sum.
- 25% of any cash lump sum taken will be paid tax-free. The rest will be taxed as income.
- If the member is able to take only part of their retirement savings from the scheme as a cash lump sum, you'll need to tell us the total amount that they want to receive. If exit charges apply under the terms and conditions of the plan which is held under the scheme, the total amount that we'll deduct from their retirement savings will be higher than the amount they'll receive in order to cover these charges. We'll confirm if any exit charges will apply before the member takes any of their retirement savings.
- We'll pay the gross amount of the cash lump sum to you the trustees. As the trustees you'll need to pay any tax that is due. If you do not have the correct tax code for the member, you'll need to deduct income tax at the emergency rate from the taxable portion of the member's cash lump sum. As the trustees, you'll need to make the member aware of this and they'll need to reclaim or pay the difference directly to HM Revenue & Customs (HMRC).
- Once you receive the completed form back from the member, you'll need to return this to Royal London at PO Box 413, Wilmslow, Cheshire, SK9 0EN.

 - entitled to either primary or enhanced protection and they've had a right to a tax-free lump sum of greater than £375,000 on 5 April 2006;
 - entitled to a lifetime allowance enhancement factor and the available portion of their lump sum allowance is less than 25% of the amount of the payment.
- if the member is under age 75, the maximum cash lump sum they can take from their retirement savings under the scheme will not be greater than 25% of their remaining lifetime allowance;
- if the member is over age 75, a proportion of their lifetime allowance must still be in place;
- if the member is not already subject to the money purchase annual allowance (MPAA) they'll trigger this by taking all or part of their retirement savings as a cash lump sum from the scheme.
- we, the trustees of the scheme, are responsible for telling the members of the scheme the above information where a member decides to take a cash lump sum from their retirement savings under the scheme.

We, the trustees of the scheme, confirm that:
